About China Postal Savings Bank (formerly China Postal Savings and Remittance Bureau)

China Post began its postal savings services in 1919 with the establishment of the China Postal Savings and Remittance Bureau. In March 2007, Postal Savings and Remittance Bureau was formally restructured into a full-service commercial bank. The newly established entity - China Postal Savings Bank (CPSB) – is the fifth-largest financial institution in China with more than 36,000 branches.

With the restructuring of China's postal system, the CPSB has been formed with the aim of broadening access to financial services across the country. According to the China Banking Regulatory Commission, the CPSB will specialize in retail banking and intermediary services, targeting rural areas with its extensive network.
